Compiled by Kevin D. Motes, Oklahoma Department of Libraries – US Government
Information Division with assistance from Fred Gomeringer and Steve Beleu

This publication is issued by the Oklahoma Department of libraries as authorized by 65 O.S. 201, § 3-110. One hundred (100) copies have been printed at a cost of $259.25. Copies have been deposited with the Publications Clearinghouse in the Oklahoma Department of Libraries. At the time of publication, access was also available through ODL's website, www.odl.state.ok.us. July, 2006.

This guide is intended to give those interested in genealogical research some idea of the kinds of materials available through the U.S. Government Information Division of the Oklahoma Department of Libraries, as well as through the Federal Depository Library System in general. Although our library primarily serves the State and Federal government, academic, and library communities, our collection contains many resources that might be helpful to the genealogical researcher.

Among the most valuable of these resources are military registers and roll calls, monographs on military history, and federal agency and department registers and lists. The information provided in these materials ranges from just a person's name to rank, date and place of birth, date of rank, honors and awards, and assignments.

Other materials, such as telephone directories and annual reports, are of value to many fewer researchers, as they often give no more data than a name and telephone number, or mention of a very few persons in high-ranking positions.

We do not have individual military service records, medical records, or copious amounts of detailed information on all military or federal government employees. Most of our military documents refer to officers and not to enlisted men, and most items that do refer to enlisted men give little information. Further, most of our federal agency and department information is limited to names, telephone numbers, and office numbers of heads of departments or divisions during a given year.

Although we do not have a genealogical librarian and cannot perform detailed genealogical information searches, we will make any of these materials available either in our library or through interlibrary loan (with exceptions for extremely old or fragile items). We hope this guide can help you identify any items that might be useful.

The number that follows each entry for resources available in a tangible form is a Superintendent of Documents (Sudocs) classification number, assigned by the Federal Government to documents sent to depository libraries. These numbers are the easiest method for us to find a specific title, since our collection is arranged by the Sudocs system.

Federal Web Sites Useful in Genealogical Research

There are many commercial genealogical resources on the Internet, some of which provide a wealth of information and numerous lists of resources, representing a wide range of usefulness. The sites listed here are limited to Federal Government sites and sites associated with or sponsored by a Federal agency or department. Similar to commercial sites, the usefulness of these sites varies.

Air Force Historical Research Agency

<http://www.au.af.mil/au/afhra/>

This site includes many different links to information related to the U.S. Air Force. It also contains many personal papers of commanders and a link to a database of people who have earned an Aerial Victory Credit during combat. <http://www.au.af.mil/au/afhra/avc/avc.asp>

American Family Immigration History Center

<http://www.ellisland.org>

Access to immigration records at Ellis Island.

Bureau of Land Management General Land Office Records

<http://www.gloreCORDS.blm.gov/>

Provides "live access to Federal land conveyance records for the Public Land States." Also provides "image access to more than two million Federal land title records for Eastern Public Land States, issued between 1820 and 1908. Images of Serial patents (land titles issued between 1908 and the mid-1960's) are currently being added to this web site. Due to organization of documents in the GLO collection, this site does not currently contain every Federal title record issued for the Public Land States."

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention: Where to Write for Vital Records

<http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/howto/w2w/w2welcom.htm>

Gives the address to which written requests for birth or death certificates can be sent. Because these records are kept by the individual states, this page is organized by state.

Indian Health Service—Genealogy

http://www.ihs.gov/misc/links_gateway/sub_categories.cfm?Sub_Cat_ID=0807

Presents information specifically for persons researching American Indian ancestry.

Index to the Final Rolls of Citizens and Freedmen of the Five Civilized Tribes in Indian Territory (Dawes)

<http://www.archives.gov/research/arc/native-americans-final-rolls.html>

This is the index to the names of individuals entitled to enrollment on the rolls of the various tribes comprising the Five Civilized Tribes in Indian Territory (Oklahoma). The index entries are arranged by tribe and there under by enrollment category (Cherokee By Blood, Cherokee Minor, Cherokee Freedmen, etc.).

Index to the Applications Submitted for the Eastern Cherokee Roll of 1909 (Guion Miller Roll)

<http://www.archives.gov/research/arc/native-americans-guion-miller.html>

The index includes the names of all persons applying for compensation arising from the judgment of the United States Court of Claims on May 28, 1906, for the Eastern Cherokee tribe.

Library of Congress Local History and Genealogy Reading Room

<http://www.loc.gov/rr/genealogy/>

“What to do to prepare for your genealogical research at the Library of Congress; overview of reading room policies, and searching tips for locating genealogical materials in the online catalog. Information on what genealogical materials are available in the Library's collection of books and monographs; CD-ROMs; Internet-based subscription services available onsite; and the vertical file.”

National Archives and Records Administration (NARA): Genealogy

<http://www.archives.gov/genealogy/index.html>

“The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) has many records that are useful for genealogical research, such as the Federal population censuses, 1790-1930; military service and pension records, ca. 1776-1900; immigration records, 1820-1957; and naturalization records. You may wish to begin your research in census records, which are available for 1790-1920. Begin with the 1930 census and work your way backwards. Census records are basic building blocks for your genealogical research; they will provide names of family members, ages, state or country of birth, occupation, and other useful information.”

National Archives and Records Administration (NARA): Native American Records

<http://www.archives.gov/research/arc/topics/native-americans.html#kern>

This site consists of several other links to various Native American Records held by NARA.

National Archives and Records Administration (NARA): Revolutionary War

<http://www.archives.gov/research/american-revolution/index.html>

“This page lists various Military documents and web links to many sites that specialize in the American Revolutionary War; such as personal accounts, eyewitness descriptions, and contemporary maps and drawings.”

National Archives and Records Administration (NARA): War of 1812

<http://www.archives.gov/research/military/war-of-1812.html>

“This page is similar to the above page only is centered on the War of 1812.”

National Archives and Records Administration (NARA): Civil War

<http://www.archives.gov/research/civil-war/index.html>

“Over 2.8 million men (and a few hundred women) served in the Union and Confederate armies during the Civil War. This page briefly describes resources for researching the military service of individual Civil War soldiers.

<http://www.archives.gov/research/alic/reference/military/civil-war-resources.html>

“Various documents about the Civil War are contained on this page.”

▪ UNION RECORDS

For Union army soldiers, there are three major records in the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) that provide information on military service: (1) compiled military service record (CMSR); (2) pension application file; and (3) records reproduced in microfilm publication M594, Compiled Records Showing Service of Military Units in Volunteer Union Organizations (225 rolls). <http://www.archives.gov/research/military/microfilm/m594.pdf>

▪ CONFEDERATE RECORDS

For Confederate army soldiers, there are two major records in NARA that provide information on military service: (1) compiled military service record \(CMSR\) and (2) records reproduced in microfilm publication M861, Compiled Records Showing Service of Military Units in Confederate Organizations (74 rolls). Records relating to Confederate soldiers are typically less complete than those relating to Union soldiers because many Confederate records did not survive the war. NARA does not have pension files for Confederate soldiers. Pensions were granted to Confederate veterans and their widows and minor children by the States of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia; these records are in the state archives or equivalent agency.”

National Archives and Records Administration (NARA): Korea and Vietnam State-Level Casualty Lists

<http://www.archives.gov/research/korean-war/casualty-lists/index.html>

“The Center for Electronic Records, National Archives and Records Administration, has custody of two data files in the Records of the Office of the Secretary of Defense (Record Group 330). They contain records of U.S. military casualties from the Korean and Vietnam conflicts. The records in the Korean Conflict Casualty File (KCCF) are for persons who died as a result of hostilities in Korea, 1950-57, including those who died while missing or captured. The Center has prepared state casualty lists by creating extracts from the data files. The state lists include the following data for each casualty: name, rank or grade, branch of service, home of record, date of casualty, date of birth (Vietnam only), and category of casualty. The state lists are sorted in two ways: alphabetically by last name; or, alphabetically by "home of record." You can access these state-level casualty extracts through the Center for Electronic Records website. As of August 1999, the version of the Vietnam state lists available on-line are those generated from the November 1997 version of the CACCF. Dates of death in the CACCF as of November 1997 range from 1957-1995.”

Railroad Retirement Board

<http://www.rrb.gov/mep/genealogy.asp>

“The U.S. Railroad Retirement Board administers a Federal retirement benefit program covering the nation's railroad workers. The records it maintains deal primarily with the administration and payment of these benefits. The Board will provide information from its records on deceased persons for the purpose of genealogical research. However, it will not release information on persons who are still living without the written consent of that person.”

Records of Post-Civil War Federal Agencies at the National Archives

http://www.pueblo.gsa.gov/cic_text/misc/blk-family/t_blk-family.htm

“The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) is the official repository of the permanently valuable records of the U.S. Government. NARA's vast holdings document the lives and experiences of persons who interacted with the Federal Government. The records created by post-Civil War Federal agencies are perhaps some of the most important records available for the study of black family life and genealogy...The records are an extremely rich source of documentation for the African American family historian seeking to 'bridge the gap' for the transitional period from slavery to freedom.”

Selective Service System: Obtaining Records

<http://www.sss.gov/RECORDS2.HTM>

"The Selective Service System is able to provide information from records kept on men currently registered with Selective Service, as well as on men who were registrants as far back as World War I. The Agency carefully follows the provisions of the Privacy Act and will not release a registrant's home address, phone number, Social Security Number, or any other protected information without the express consent of the registrant."

U.S. Census Bureau—Genealogy

<http://www.census.gov/genealogy/www/>

"Copies of decennial census forms from 1790 through 1920 are available, usually on microfilm, for research at the United States National Archives in Washington, DC (<http://www.nara.gov/>), at Archives regional centers, and at select depository libraries throughout the United States, and the Library of Congress. Ask the reference librarian in your local library about its own holdings and about borrowing film through the National Archives' census microfilm rental program (301-604-3699). The records can also be borrowed from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (LDS) (Mormon) Library in Salt Lake City through any LDS Family History Center. (NOTE: microfilm is analog data, NOT digital ... it is copies of the original handwritten records). Some LDS records can be obtained online for free, such as the 1880 U.S. Census through their web site: <http://www.familysearch.org/>

U.S. Census Bureau—1790 U.S. Census of Population and Housing

<http://www.census.gov/prod/www/abs/decennial/1790.htm>

“The first enumeration began on Monday, August 2, 1790, little more than a year after the inauguration of President Washington and shortly before the second session of the first Congress ended. The Congress assigned responsibility for the 1790 census to the marshals of the U.S. judicial districts under an act that, with minor modifications and extensions, governed census-taking through 1840. The law required that every household be visited and that completed census schedules be posted in “two of the most public places within [each jurisdiction], there to remain for the inspection of all concerned...” and that “the aggregate amount of each description of persons” for every district be transmitted to the President. The six inquiries in 1790 called for the name of the head of the family and the number of persons in each household of the following descriptions: Free White males of 16 years and upward (to assess the country’s industrial and military potential), free White males under 16 years, free White females, all other free persons (by sex and color), and slaves.”
The collection contains the names of the Head of Families, by State, County and Town.

Military Casualty Lists and Decorations, Awards, Honors

Some of the resources in this category, especially those dealing with decorations, awards, and honors, are quite informative and provide biographical information on honorees. At the other end of the spectrum, many casualty lists provide only an alphabetical list of names, with or without rank or term of service. Most of these resources contain long alphabetical lists of one form or another.

Aces and Aerial Victories: The United States Air Force in Southeast Asia 1965-1973.

(1976) 188p. Department of Defense. Department of the Air Force. Office of Air Force History. Albert F. Simpson Historical Research Center. Air University.

W 1.1:

Registers, Directories, and Annual Reviews and Reports

Some of these resources are not very informative. Directories, especially telephone directories of Federal agencies, often provide only last name, first initial, office number, and telephone number. The chief use of these types of items would be to verify that a certain person worked in a certain office during a specific year.

Other items in this section, such as some of the political registers, offer much more, including detailed biographical and historical information. If the listing does not provide a date of publication, the item is a recurring (though not always regular) publication that has been published in more than one year under the same Superintendent of Documents number.

Annual Report of the Attorney-General of the United States. Department of Justice. List of Presidential pardons, statement of the names and compensation of special assistants to United States Attorneys, names and annual salaries of United States District Attorneys and their assistants and clerks, and names and annual salaries of United States Marshals and their deputies and clerks.

Primarily Historical Works

The usefulness of these resources varies widely. Some are historical works that mention only high-ranking officials, or that mention only a select few people, and list those names in the index. Others contain large lists of people who contributed to a certain military campaign or the history of an organization. Unfortunately, in many of these cases the names appear in lists with very little additional information. Some contain detailed biographies and even photographs of several to many people. Still others contain combinations of some or all of these elements.

Periodicals

Periodicals are a difficult group of materials to use in this type of research. The lack of indexing and irregularity of the formats of many government periodicals, not to mention the frequent name changes and reorganizations, makes it difficult to know where to look, as well as what can be found. These would be most useful to someone who has information that a person was mentioned in a particular publication in a particular volume and issue. These materials are not easy to browse.

Immigrant Arrivals: A Guide to Published Sources. (1988) 13p. Library of Congress. General Reading Rooms Division. Local History and Genealogy Reading Room. Virginia Steele Wood.

“In the study of immigration history, ship passenger lists have become increasingly important sources of data for historians, demographers, biographers, and genealogists. This is particularly true in the United States where forebears of all but native American Indians arrived by ship from colonial times until the advent and popularity of air travel. Between the years 1607 and 1920, it is estimated that over thirty million immigrants came to these shores; during the past two centuries, over half of them came through the port of New York.”

Index to Applications for Enrollment in the Five Civilized Tribes Under the Act of 1896. [database only] Native American Collection CD. (1998) GenRef, Inc. and the Oklahoma Historical Society.

“Prior to 1896, the tribal governments exercised exclusive jurisdiction over citizenship. However, under an act by Congress on June 10, 1896, the Dawes Commission was authorized to receive applications for citizenship and to add names to the existing tribal rolls. This index, supplied by the Ft. Worth office of the National Archives, is a database of thousands of individuals (Cherokee, Chickasaw, Choctaw and Creek) who applied for enrollment under the act. Information includes surname, given name, middle initial (if available), tribe and case number. . . . Case files include original applications and petitions, along with supporting affidavits, depositions, and memorials.”

[originally published 1910] Native American Collection CD. (1998) 1067 scanned PDF pages. GenRef, Inc. and the Oklahoma Historical Society. Gideon, D.C.

“Commonly called Gideon’s History of Indian Territory, this massive work provides a comprehensive history of the Five Civilized Tribes from removal until . . . at least 1900. The book also includes aspects of the tribes’ culture, language, habits, education, and religion. Published in 1901, Gideon’s is replete with biographical information on Indian and non-Indian citizens, providing the researcher with rich genealogical data.”

The Indian Territory: Its Chiefs, Legislators and Leading Men. [originally published 1892] Native American Collection CD. (1998) 477 scanned PDF pages. GenRef, Inc. and the Oklahoma Historical Society. H.G.O’Beirne and E.S O’Beirne.

“This book deals primarily with biographies of the leading men of the territory. The rich source provides genealogical data on many of the men, and in some cases shows a photograph of the individual as well.”

Manuscript Holdings of the Military History Research Collection: A Military History Research Collection Bibliography. (1975) 246p. Department of Defense. Department of the Army. US Army Military History Research Collection. Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania.

Lists research collections held by the US Army Military History Research Collection at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania. "Men who became general officers at some point in their careers predominate among Twentieth Century collections, whereas most manuscripts for the earlier period pertain to field and company officers and enlisted men. For all these years, services, and ranks, personal papers still make up the overwhelming number of holdings: family correspondence, diaries, and memoirs. Some retained copies of official papers are available...Each collection is alphabetically under its main entry, usually the principal's name."

Special List 40: Selected Documents Pertaining to Black Workers Among the Records of the Department of Labor and Its Component Bureaus. 1902-1969. (1977)

55p. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. The National Archives. Debra L. Newman.

“This list does not refer to all of the documents relating to black workers that are among the records of the Department of Labor and its component bureaus. Items were selected for the list because of their importance for understanding the history of the relationship between the black wage earner and the Department of Labor. Some documents are unique; others are representative of a larger group of similar records. The items in the list are arranged alphabetically by major subject headings, thereunder by minor subject headings, and thereunder chronologically...The inclusive dates are from 1902 to 1969, but most items are dated between 1918 and 1940.”
